Keywords: government oversight
Description: FERC Staff evaluated the role of FERC in role of ANGTA and FERC in new proposals to build a natural gas pipeline to deliver North Slope gas to market. The document includes a brief history of the issue. They concluded that sponsors seeking federal authority to build an Alaska gas pipeline might be able to file an entirely new application for an entirely new pipeline under the Natural Gas Act. Sponsors also might be able to file an application under the existing ANGTA law. The exact circumstances would drive the decision.

Amendment to Application of Northwest Pipeline Corporation at docket CP76-174 for certificate of Public convenience and necessity pursuant to section 7(c) of the natural gas act authorizing the transportation of natural gas in interstate commerce. by Northwest Pipeline Corporation, before the Federal Power Commission, March 15, 1976.

Notes: "wrong date" handwritten on title page
Notes: no route was specified. It seems likely that it was for the Arctic Gas Proposal. Interstate Transmission had withdrawn from the group planning to deliver gas from the Arctic Gas Pipeline System to western markets on March 1, 1976. The same day the remaining members of the group signed an agreement for Pacific Gas Transmission Co. to transport North Slope gas for the other three companies, to connect with their existing pipelines. It was not until May 5, 1976 that the Alcan Project agreements were signed.

Description: A Comparative Economic model was used in this study to analyze return of investment of the Alcan highway stand alone gas pipeline, the Alcan plus an instate spur line to southern Alaska, and the All- Alaskan LNG project. It was shown from the analysis that the Alcan Highway stand-alone pipeline project had the highest return on investment of 33%. This was followed by the Alcan Highway gas pipeline with an instate spur line to southern Alaska with return on investment of 32.6%. The all-Alaskan LNG projects proved feasible but with less return on investment compared to other options.

Description: This study indicated that a large diameter pipeline could deliver gas to Fairbanks less expensively than a 19" pipeline. A refinery at North Pole and a power plant would be economically viable. Liquefying gases at Prudhoe and shipping it through the oil pipeline would be too expensive. Community social and economic goals would probably be best served by continuing to use coal for power.
